QUEEN'S DECISION TO STAY AT HOME

Italy Was Apprehensive For Her Majesty's Safety.

ANARCHISTS AGAIN SORE

Queen's Subjects Glad She Will Not Go.
Her Visit to Dublin Will Be Fittingly Observed—Nervous Gaiety
Prevails in England.

LONDON, March 10.—Queen Victoria's decision to stay in her own dominions instead of going to Italy, and all the jubilation in consequence, are not entirely due to the causes attributed by the British press. It is learned that the Italian government had daily been growing more nervous as the date of the queen's visit approached and, finally notified her majesty's government that it would not care to accept the responsibility of the sovereign's safety, owing to the strong recrudescence of the anarchistic movement throughout Europe.

Reports from other powers confirmed the Italian impressions. This apparently was the chief factor in the queen's sudden change of plans, though doubtless many of her ministers always thought it was better policy for her to remain at home while the nation was in the throes of war. In any case the result with the accompanying celebrations and the announcement of the queen's coming trip to Ireland has had a most beneficial effect on the United Kingdom.

Gaiety reigns though perhaps it is tinged with some undercurrent of the nervousness that Thackeray described in the ball before Waterloo. Trade has revived and shopkeepers, especially those of the metropolis, look forward to big business. It has long been a standing grievance that the queen has so seldom visited London, and her present visit is an atonement for past neglect.

As for Ireland it is in a state of excitement, and such excitement has not been seen for many a year. Regardless of politics the queen's visit to Dublin will doubtless be made the occasion for unprecedented festivities, though throughout Great Britain there will be tension until the queen has crossed the channel in safety.

Gossip of the War.
Major Child of the South Lighthorse, who was killed in a victorious assault and whose own epitaph was "It Is Well With Child; It Is Well," has been succeeded in the command by Sir Bryan Leighton, who served with the American troops against Spain and wrote a book about it. This adventurous young baronet, who is a cousin of the late Major Child and who was standing beside the latter when Child was killed, went to South Africa as correspondent of an illustrated paper and obtained a commission in the South African Light-horse. He has now been made a major commanding a squadron. While he fights the Boers, the youthful Lady Leighton occupies the unique position in England of master of the hounds.

There is a good deal of chagrin displayed over what is termed Lord Roberts' too generous treatment of General Cronje and the tendency in some sections of the press to hysterically over-rate Cronje's bravery. Many references are now made to Cronje's alleged dishonesty in the former war, in accepting the surrender of the British garrison of Poteschfstrom when a general armistice had been proclaimed.

Vanity Fair says:
"There is a vein of sentimentality in the Anglo-Saxon nature which sometimes transgresses reasonable limits. Just at present it is engaged in elevating Cronje to the level of a hero."

The government is contemplating sending the Boer leader to the island of St. Helena, but no definite decision has been reached. On this subject The Morning Post publishes a letter saying:
"In view of the fact that the very name of St. Helena causes a passionate ebullition in France it would be foolish for England to arouse this feeling by selecting Napoleon's place of banishment for Cronje."

Westminster Abbey Crumbling.
According to the newly appointed surveyor of Westminster Abbey, that ancient edifice is fast crumbling to pieces owing to the action of the fumes of manufactories on the opposite side of the river on the weather worn stones. This contention is illustrated by photographs of white patches on the interior and exterior parts of the abbey, indicating crumbling.

A curious romance comes from Chester, where there was recently admitted to the workhouse a Captain Salisbury, son of the late member of parliament for Chester. Though 41 years old, he has had a remarkable career as soldier, war correspondent and author, finally falling upon very hard days. It seemed as if this distinguished paper was doomed to spend the rest of its life in the poorhouse, when there suddenly appeared on the scene an apparently rich woman described as Miss Emily Cunningham of Ireland. The sequel occurred Thursday last when Captain Salisbury was married to this visitor. They departed for Chester in great style and amidst no end of sensation.

STAGE GLINTS.

Rose Coghlan says that next season she will produce a new play by her brother, the late Charles Coghlan, and will also revive "Madame" by him.

Mme. Pilar-Morin, Mme. Alexa, William Blaisdell and Clara Lavine are engaged for a company that an adventurous manager is about to take to Manila.

Alice Nielsen, with "The Singing Girl," was born in Nashville in 1874. Her father was a Danish musician, who died when little Alice was but 3 years old.

Laura Joyce Bell's new sketch marks the introduction of golf to the vaudeville stage. The sketch is based on that sport. It is called "The Lady of the Links."

Miss Christie MacDonald of "The Rounders" is reported engaged to be married. The happy man is declared to be William Jefferson, a son of Joseph Jefferson.

Two of Whishaw's novels of Russian life have recently been made into plays. Beerbohm Tree may appear in the version of that one called "A Boyar of the Terrible."

Harry Davenport, who played the husband in "The Rounders," has succeeded Dan Daly as the blasé duke. Seabrooke is back in the cast, and Richard Carroll has left it.

Smith and De Koven are at work on "Maid Marian," a comic opera to be a sequel to "Robin Hood." It will be produced at the Casino, New York, instead of by the Bostonians.

"The Wire Walker," in which Edna May may appear in London next April, is said to be a new version of the comic opera by Kerker and Morton known formerly as "An American Beauty."

She and the Moon.
"Ah, you are like the moon," he said;
"The queen of night
That sends us to sleep among
The stars her light!"
She did not bow her stately head
Nor turn her eyes.
She did not blush a rosy red
Nor utter sighs.
"The moon, up there," he said again,
"Is much like you,
Because the blindest thing is so cold
And distant too!"

An Aerial Laundry.
Balloons are now used for drying linen in one Paris laundry. Bamboo frames are attached to a captive balloon, and the clothes are attached to them. The balloon makes six ascents daily, to a height of about 100 feet, where the air, according to the proprietors of the laundry, is particularly good for linen.

Testimonial From Judge Gaston.
GREENVILLE, ALA., APR. 19, 1900.
I take great pleasure in testifying to the purity and the merit of Wilkinson's Matchless Mineral Water. This natural mineral tonic, to my personal knowledge, is taken from a well three miles east of Greenville, in the exact condition in which it is sold. I have seen this water used, with wonderful success, for dyspepsia, indigestion, sore eyes and for eruptive diseases, sores and ulcers on man and animals. As a remedy for these troubles, I do not believe its equals exist. It is highly recommended by physicians for a number of diseases.
